Lodge Meeting With President of Viet Nam

By ROY ESSOYAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge met with President Ngo Dinh Diem today in the wake of a massive student revolt smashed by armed police and troops in full battle gear.

The newly arrived American diplomat presented his credentials to Diem and the two exchanged pleasantries in a 12-minute ceremony. They put off until later hard talks on the Viet Nam crisis that flared to new heights Sunday when thousands of university students were arrested and several were injured.

As fears of an attempted coup subsided, Lodge was expected to confront Diem for the first time with U.S. views on the internal strife and determine just where the Vietnamese chief stands. Lodge arrived Thursday, the day after Diem cracked down on Buddhist opposition and placed the country under martial law.

University students took over from the Buddhists on Sunday the leadership of the mushrooming mass movement against the Diem regime, touching off fears of a full-scale revolt.

They converged on the University of Saigon to protest what they call the government's harsh rule, but never had a chance to demonstrate. Police hauled students off bicycles, scooters and motorcycles, threw them into trucks and drove them away.

Rifle fire wounded two teenage girls students. One unidentified, report said police shot and killed a 17-year-old girl attempting to flee the roundup.

More than 30 truckloads of students were hauled off in the first hour. Continuous waves of students swarming toward the university were arrested and hauled off for another two hours. There were no official estimates of the number arrested or injured. Side-walks near the university were littered with hundreds of bicycles abandoned by the students.

The demonstrating students were joined by some Buddhist followers who accuse the government of Diem, a Roman Catholic, of religious discrimination.

Saigon bristled with barbed wire barricades, sharply restricting movements throughout the city. Curfew was in force, and censorship prevailed.

Police cleared roads leading to Lodge's residence to prevent student demonstrations there.

Bid Farewell to Commander

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — More than 2,000 officers and men under the command of Ft. Chaffee commander Maj. Gen. A. J. Adams bid him farewell at the post parade grounds today as he left for his new assignment.

Adams will become Assistant Chief of Staff (logistics), Headquarters, U.S. Army Pacific in Honolulu.

Maj. Gen. Teddy H. Sanford, who now holds that job, will get Adams' position as Chaffee commander.

Group OKs Compulsory Arbitration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Commerce Committee approved today legislation to require compulsory binding arbitration on two manpower issues that threaten a nationwide railroad strike at midnight Wednesday, but to leave other issues to bargaining.

The measure, differing in that respect from one approaching the point of action in the Senate, would leave the unions free to strike over the secondary points.

House leaders said they will seek a vote on their measure Wednesday, aiming to get it to President Kennedy in time to head off the walkout threatened at 12:01 a.m. Thursday by five unions representing on-train employees.

Some 185 U.S. railroads have said they will post new work rules effective at that hour, slashing manpower they contend is unnecessary. The unions have warned they will strike if the rules are put into effect.

The House version of the arbitration measure would have a seven-member board arbitrate disputes over the jobs of firemen on diesel locomotives, and the makeup and size of train crews.

Points to be left to collective bargaining include a variety of other issues, covering wages and additional work rules.

Under the Senate plan, if those issues were not resolved by negotiators within 30 days after the arbitration award on the firemen and crew disputes, the board also would make binding decisions on the other items.

The Senate version provides that the arbitration award on the manpower items would not be effective until all other items in dispute had been settled through negotiation or arbitration.

The House measure would put the award into effect 60 days after it is filed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Interstate Commerce Committee approved today a bill to require arbitration of the work rules dispute that threatens a nationwide railroad strike Thursday.

The bill follows closely the provisions of a measure scheduled for Senate debate.

The House group's action clears the way for speedy consideration of any measure the Senate may pass. The House could call up its own bill and then subcommittee on Page Two

Writer Puzzled About March on Washington and Can't Figure Out the Reason Why

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — At the risk of being an individual, I've decided not to march on Washington this Wednesday.

When it comes to criticizing the government, I yield to no man.

But I'd rather sustain it at a distance than march upon it. The best government is the one you're farthest from. I'd rather send it my money than lend it my presence.

Obviously, many other people don't feel that way. It appears that everybody who doesn't have anything else to do is going to march on Washington Wednesday — too late to see the cherry trees in bloom and too early to admire the frost on Lincoln's metal beard.

"See you at the barricades on Pennsylvania Avenue," my friends have been telling me. I doubt that they will. In fact, I'm sure they won't.

One of the things that puzzles me about the march on Washington is that I can no longer figure out the reason why. It began as a racial protest but it now appears as a walk of sustenance. Everybody who is either for or

3 Accidents Here Probed

Three accidents were investigated by City Police over the weekend. At Ave B. and N. Ferguson cars driven by Wayne Whitely and E. E. Coburn collided with very heavy damages resulting.

Officers said that cars driven by Doris Jean Findley and Avis Sinyard collided at Hazel and Third Sunday with only minor damage resulting.

At Third and Hazel autos driven by Mrs. Leah R. Godwin, Malvern, and Albert J. Seasmere, Streveport, collided with small damage occurring.

Woman Not Guilty of Slaying

PRESCOTT — A charge of first degree murder against Mrs. Ruby Richardson, 39, of near Prescott, has been dismissed by a Nevada County Grand jury which ruled that she killed her husband in self defense.

Carl Richardson, 48, was found May 12 in the cab of his burned pickup truck near Girdon. Mrs. Richardson was arrested May 15 at Hope on her way home from Texas.

Prosecuting Atty. John Goodson said at the time of the arrest that Mrs. Richardson told him she hit her husband with a wrench and stabbed him in the abdomen with a 10-inch butcher knife after he slapped her during an argument.

Goodson said the woman told him she put the body in the truck when she realized Richardson was dead, drove the truck off state Highway 51, doused it with gasoline and set it afire.

Only 9 of 13 Escape to West

BERLIN (AP) — At least 13 East Germans tried to flee to the west over the weekend. Of these, nine are known to have succeeded.

There also was the case of a 2-year-old boy who wandered into a field and was found in Bavaria.

In Berlin, a young border guard disarmed his sergeant and escaped over barbed wire in the western sector, reliable sources said. West Berlin police said two other East German guards also made it safely west.

FULL OF ADMIRATION FOR HUBBY, JOAN WILLIS Graham, a brand new wife of 10 days, coaches the happy bridegroom, Sp5 Charles G. Graham, on the finer points of shooting at the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio. The couple is honeymooning at the camp during the matches, in which Specialist Graham is firing on the Arkansas National Guard Rifle Team.

CAMP PERRY, OHIO — Some people spend their honeymoon on a yacht, while others enjoy a small hideaway somewhere in the mountains. But for Sp5 and Mrs. Charles G. Graham, Hope, Ark., the crack of high-powered rifles provides the melody of honeymoon music.

Specialist Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Graham, Jr., of Hope and his brand new wife of 10 days, the former Joan Willis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elston Willis, of Hope, are combining business with pleasure for their honeymoon. Charles is firing in the National Matches at Camp Perry with the Arkansas National Guard Rifle Team. The couple will be at Camp Perry for another week, after which they will tour the off-shore islands around the Northern Ohio resort for a few days and then return home.

This is the second year at the National Matches for Charles, who started shooting rifles at the age of fifteen. At that time he became a member of the Hempstead County Rifle and Pistol Club. Through the club he became interested in firing small-bore weapons. Then, upon joining the Arkansas National Guard, Charles was introduced to this high-power phase of shooting, namely the M-1 rifle. He fired in the Fort Hood, Texas, matches this year, the State Matches of Arkansas, and has been a competitor in the small-bore Inter-Arkansas for the last three years.

As for Joan, this is her first year at Camp Perry. She attended some of the Small Arms Firing lectures and has developed an active interest in shooting. However, she prefers to let hubby teach her how to fire when they return to Arkansas and, perhaps next year, she would like to enter into the competition at the National Matches.

Specialist Graham, a company medic with the 87th Engineer Battalion, Arkansas Army National Guard, in Jonesboro, will be starting his fourth year in pre-medicine at Arkansas State College this fall. He will then enter the University of Arkansas Medical School at Little Rock, where he will spend three more years in the classroom and then undertake his internship program.

The new Mrs. Graham, who has completed two years at Henderson State Teachers' College, Arkadelphia, Arkansas, will also be enrolled in Arkansas State College this fall. Her immediate plans are to finish her schooling and then teach on the secondary level while Charles is still enrolled in school.

Specialist Graham underwent a most unusual experience in August, 1960, while at Fort Polk, Louisiana. He was ready to start firing on one of the post ranges during a thunderstorm, when a bolt of lightning struck him, scoring a direct shot on his helmet. The lightning traveled through his body and came out his left foot. He spent seven months under close medical care, first at Brooks General Hospital, San Antonio, Texas, then at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., and was finally released to active status once again with his National Guard unit.

When the couple returns to Arkansas, they will reside on Caraway Road Jonesboro.

Dynamite Victims Not Identified

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — The identity of the man or men killed in an explosion of a load of stolen dynamite was unknown today in the confused aftermath of the blast which caused thousands of dollars' damage in the Butte area.

Sheriff Bill Dalling's office has given no detailed account of the incident because of confusion on certain points and official silence on others.

Dalling's deputies, staked out near the blast scene Saturday night, were moving in to make arrests when the explosion occurred. No deputies were injured seriously.

There were indications from officials—but no confirmation—that two or more men first believed to have been killed in the blast may have escaped.

Early reports from officials indicated as many as five persons could have been killed.

Human remains were so fragmented and scattered over such a large area by the blast that authorities found it difficult to determine the number of casualties.

Authorities said the trap for the thieves was arranged by William P. LaVelle Jr., operator of the LaVelle Powder Co. Officers said they were not aware that LaVelle and his brother, Thomas, were to be present for the ambush.

About four tons of dynamite were stolen from LaVelle's firm nearly a month ago.

Authorities said the men were told that payment for the explosives would be locked in a parked truck in an abandoned smelter dump where the explosion occurred.

They also were told the money would be delivered to them when the pickup was loaded with dynamite, authorities said.

Deputy Sheriff Ken Cunningham and a fellow officer were about 130 feet away and approaching three parked cars and the truck when the dynamite blew up. Both officers were cut and bruised but escaped serious injury.

2 Officers Are Killed in N. Jersey

By LEW HEAD

LODI, N.J. (AP) — Two policemen were shot to death in a night club early today while investigating a disturbance. The search for the killer spread to New York City after a police picked up a man for questioning.

Bergen County Prosecutor Guy W. Calissi identified the alleged killer only as Tom T.

The man being questioned was identified by Calissi as Anthony Cassarino, about 25.

Calissi identified a third man in the bar as Frank Falco.

The two officers, Detective Sgt. Peter Voto, 40, and probationary patrolman Garry Tedesco, 22, were gunned down in the Angel Lounge on Route 46.

Calissi said Cassarino admitted being one of three men in the Angel Lounge when the shootings occurred. He was picked up within an hour in nearby Hasbrouck Heights by a policeman who spotted him in a clump of weeds.

Shortly before the 3 a.m. closing time, Voto and Tedesco entered the night club to investigate a noise complaint.

Calissi said the three men had been drinking highballs and all were "high."

Voto, a 12-year veteran of the force, apparently asked the men for identification and took one of them aside to search him. During the frisking, Voto discovered a gun wrapped in a towel near a stage drum used by the night club's band.

Then, Calissi said, Tom T. grabbed Voto from behind by the neck, dragged him through the bar and forced him to begin undressing.

Tedesco, who was unarmed, came running in from outside. More shots rang out. Three slugs struck Tedesco, two in the abdomen and one in the chest. Voto caught one bullet in the back and another in the chin.

Arkansas school patrons will vote on a record $24 million in bond issues in annual school elections in September.

The previous high was $20,100,600 last year.

Included in this year's bond issues is one for $4.7 million submitted by the Little Rock School Board.

The state Board of Education will consider $18.4 million in bond issue loans at its Sept. 8 meeting in Little Rock.

The approval is conditioned on voter approval of the issues in elections later in the month. The rest of the issues approved at the polls will be considered by the board in December.

Temperature Rockets in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temperatures rocketed to 105 at Clarksville, Gilbert, Morrilton and Ozark Sunday as summer weather moved back into Arkansas and began, trying to make up for lost time.

The heat was in sharp contrast to the record low temperatures reported last week when pleasant days and chilly nights made living more comfortable.

It was 104 at Fort Smith, 101 at Dardanelle and 100 at Hot Springs Sunday. Other high readings were generally in the 90s.

Highs of 90 in the northeast and 94-102 elsewhere were predicted for this afternoon. Overnight lows were expected to range 66-76.

Light showers Sunday did little to alleviate dry conditions and most stations reporting rain had less than one tenth of an inch.

A weak cold front lay across the northern Arkansas border this morning, but the front was inactive and was expected to produce only isolated shower activity this afternoon and tonight.

Cloudiness associated with the front was expected to account for the lower temperatures in the northeast this afternoon.

Temperatures during the next five days were expected to average near normal with minor day to day changes. Normal highs range from the upper 80s north to the low 90s south, normal lows from the mid to upper 60s.

Widely scattered thundershowers in northeast Arkansas were expected to produce about one-quarter of an inch of rainfall during the five-day period, with little or none elsewhere.

Hope Soars for Rescue of Pair Tonight

By JAMES V. LAM B

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — The drill bit today broke through the first part of the plug at the bottom of the escape hole for Henry Thron and David Fellin.

News of the break came when Fellin shouted into his microphone: "Something came down."

"Asked what it was, he said, 'Some clay.'"

"Good. That's a good sign," said Gordon Smith, deputy secretary of mines. "It means we have drilled through the concrete plug and are pushing the wooden plug ahead of us."

Once the escape hole enlargement is completed, the men will be brought to the surface—one at a time—in a specially designed steel capsule that is almost as big around as the 18-inch hole.

That probably will be sometime tonight. Once the hole is finished, the drilling rig will be moved back and a winch put in its place. Then there will be a couple dry runs with the capsule.

Fellin, 58; Thron, 28, and Lu Bova, 42, have been trapped more than 300 feet underground for 13 days. Bova has not been heard from since last Tuesday. He was trapped some 25 feet from the others and separated by tons of debris.

Churning away steadily, with time out only to attach an extension bit every 30 feet, the 65-ton drilling rig passed the two-thirds mark at dawn and at 10:30 a.m. was at the 263-foot mark.

It was stopped then while rescue officials discussed the next steps.

The pace will be slowed appreciably in the final stages to forestall any possibility of a cave-in.

Fellin and Thron remained in good spirits. They could be heard talking to each other through the microphone which provides communications to the surface through the six-inch lifeline hole—and saving wood.

"Hey, Davey, are you busy down there?" a rescuer asked. "Yeah," replied Fellin. "We're working pretty hard."

"What are you doing?" "We're putting up shoring," Fellin then was asked. "Are getting any dust?"

"Just a little bit."

Rescuers told him it probably was sifting down the six-inch lifeline hole, or perhaps was shaken from the walls by the vibrations.

stitute the Senate bill.

Congressional leaders are aiming for final action by Wednesday, wanting to get a bill to the President in time to head off a strike.

In a maneuver aimed to expedite action, Senate Democrats and Republicans called separate caucuses to try to work out agreed positions on the bill.

The five railroad brotherhoods have condemned the bill as detrimental to collective bargaining.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civil rights marchers may not see it all, but this is a city nerved by power, lined with marble, vibrant with areas of beauty and blighted by contrasting areas of squalor.

It is a city of great monuments and slums, of complex law and petty crime, of history and lethargy.

To the 100,000 or more civil rights marchers expected here Wednesday, Washington will be a symbol of national power, a capital where men and women petition for redress of grievance.

They will gather at the base of the soaring Washington Monument, the center of a vast complex of greenery and marble, a monument that looks east to the Capitol, north to the White House, west to the Lincoln Memorial and south to the Jefferson Memorial and the Tidal Basin rimmed with cherry trees.

They will march a few blocks down huge avenues and across parklands to the Lincoln Memorial, a temple in the style of the Parthenon of ancient Greece.

These are the symbols of government and beauty and history that draw almost 5 million tourists to Washington each year. But Washington has other faces, too.

In the last decade, Washington has become the only major city in the nation that has more Negroes than whites. During these years, 200,000 whites have rushed into the nearly all-white suburbs of Virginia and Maryland. Their places have been taken by Negro migrants from the South, many forced into slums.

A rise in crime has come at the same time. Although the crime has received wide and often lurid publicity, it differs little from crime rates in other big cities of America. Washington is ninth in size with a population of 764,000 but 13th in crime rate.

Some observers see signs of discontent among the city's Negroes and evidence of rising tension between the races. Last Thanksgiving, a riot, bristling with racial overtones, erupted at the high school championship football game. Negroes say there is job discrimination in the city and housing discrimination in its suburbs.

The people who live in Washington do not rule themselves and take care of their own problems. They now have the right to vote for president but, since the 1870s, they have not been allowed to elect their local officials.

The ultimate power lies in the hands of Congress — specifically in the committees that handle District of Columbia money and problems. Most of these committees are ruled by Southerners. Some residents say these congressmen have no sympathy for a 57 per cent Negro city with integrated schools and restaurants and stores.

As they drive through the city, the demonstrators will see very little industry, and it is industry that usually yields mass tax revenue for a city.

To make up for this, Congress appropriates a lump sum each year and hands it to the city. The city always complains it is far less than the amount that would flow in if federal property were taxable.

The marchers likely will find a hot and muggy city on Wednesday. That's usually the way of the city in late August.

Like India's New Delhi and Brazil's Brasilia, Washington is a city created as a capital, with no other reason for life. It does not have the vitality and culture of Paris or London or Rome or even Mexico City.

Washington has had many episodes of demonstrators marching on the city and pleading for special causes. None has been as large as Wednesday's march promises to be. Some have ended in violence.

Approximately 22 million Christmas trees are produced in the United States annually.

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — A giant drilling rig churned away today toward David Fellin and Henry Throne enlarging the final section of an escape hole through which the trapped miners will be lifted to the surface, hopefully sometime tonight.

Shortly after midnight, the drilling rig had passed the 130 foot mark and was moving at a steady pace.

Both Fellin, 58, and Throne, 23, and their relatives were optimistic this would be their last day in their tiny, dark, cold cubicle 331 feet underground. They have been trapped 13 days.

First Throne, then Fellin will be lifted to the surface in a rolled steel capsule that resembles an artillery shell. Fellin told rescue workers. The capsule will be hoisted by a winch.

The fate of a third miner, Louis Bova, 42, who hasn't been heard from since last Tuesday night and hasn't had any food since the cave-in Aug. 13, remained uncertain, but three of his brothers said they believe he is alive.

A smaller drilling rig is sending a three-inch lifeline hole toward where Bova, who is separated from Fellin and Throne by a wall of debris, is believed to be — about 25 feet away. Several breakdowns and loss of the bit slowed its progress over the week-end. Three previous attempts have failed.

A six-inch lifeline hole reached Fellin and Throne nine days ago after officials feared them dead, and since then they have been receiving food and other supplies through it. A microphone communications system also has been established, enabling the men to guide rescue workers.

A 297-foot section of the original 12-inch escape hole — which reached Fellin and Throne last Friday after two previous failures — was being reamed out to 18 inches. This is a half-inch wider than decided on Saturday to prevent the capsule, which is almost 15 inches in diameter, from snagging.

Throne and Fellin appeared to be in good spirits and continued to chatter away, boosting the morale of those on the surface with a constant stream of humor.

"Sunday night Throne asked that some 'fig bars, graham crackers and sour balls (candy)' be sent down. Fellin explained that 'we're going to have a party to celebrate our last night.'"

Fellin asked for some hot peppers and boleros for their dinner Sunday night.

"Boy, oh, boy, how can you take it?" asked Edward Tito, who was operating the microphone connection.

"It'll taste real good," said Fellin.

Tito said he would make arrangements for the meal and then asked who would come up the hole first.

"Hank will come up first," replied Fellin. "Are they making any headway now?"

"Yes, they are," replied Tito. "We're moving about 25 feet an hour. Davey."

"Going pretty slow," said Fellin.

"Yes," replied Tito, adding that he figured sometime this morning rescuers "should be real close to you."

"When we get down we'll have to go slow so there won't be any cracking," added Tito.

The giant drilling rig and bit had to cut through 14 layers of the earth's surface as it widened the escape hole. From 289 to 298 feet the layer is soft slate. From this point on, there is 15 to 16 feet of coal and rescuers must be careful to prevent a cave-in although Throne and Fellin have shored up their chamber as best they could.

Rescuers contact Fellin and Throne every few hours on the advice of medical authorities at the scene.

Temperatures in the 14 by 9-foot chamber are near freezing and medical authorities want the men to move around in the cramped quarters.

Throne was contacted again about an hour before midnight. He appeared in a jovial mood as he joked and reminisced with old friends.

Later, Throne was asked to awaken Fellin because his wife, Anna 48 wanted to talk to him. Mrs. Fellin told her husband she was going home because it was getting cold outside.

"But I'll see you there today," she said, apparently referring to the Hazleton State Hospital where a special ward has been prepared for the men. In addition to medical examinations, authorities planned a series of tests designed to give researchers an assist in dealing with survival problems.

Plans called for the men to be taken the eight miles to the hospital by helicopter.

President to Confer With Gromyko

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy agreed today to confer next month with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on follow-up steps to the limited nuclear test ban treaty with the hope of easing East-West tensions.

This was announced by Anatoly Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador, after an hour-long meeting at which he delivered to Kennedy a letter from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev expressing "thanks and appreciation" for the signing of the limited test ban agreement.

Dobrynin left open the possibility that Khrushchev may come to the United States next month to attend the General Assembly meeting of the United Nations — the event which will bring Gromyko to this country.

In telling reporters of the plan for the Kennedy-Gromyko session, Dobrynin said the subject would be steps that could be taken "just to develop relations and ease tensions."

World Church Group Meets

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Representatives of the 100-member policy-making committee of the World Council of Churches met today for their annual meeting. Business sessions and discussions—one on relations with the Roman Catholic church — were scheduled.

The world council includes Anglican, Orthodox and some Protestant churches with 400 million members in more than 90 countries.

Former Adv. Manager for Paper Dies

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—E. Julian Herndon, retired vice president and advertising director of the Arkansas Democrat, died today in a Little Rock hospital after a long illness. He was 69.

Herndon spent 53 years as an advertising man, almost 40 of them with the Democrat which he joined July 23, 1923. He retired last March 16.

On March 18 he was awarded the Advertising Silver Medal by Thomas J. McHale of Dallas, 10th District Governor of the Advertising Federation of America.

He was the oldest active member of the Midwest Newspaper Advertising Executives Association and was a board member for 25 years.

Herndon also was a former director of the National Newspaper Advertising Executives Association and lieutenant governor of the Advertising Federation of America.

He was a native of Richmond, Va., and joined the Richmond News-Leader at the age of 16. He then worked for the Richmond Times-Dispatch and his first position as advertising manager was with the Raleigh, N.C., News and Observer. In 1918 Herndon became advertising manager of the Fort Worth, Tex., Record. He came to Little Rock from Fort Worth.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Frances Herndon; a son, E. Julian Herndon Jr. of Little Rock; a sister, Mrs. F. W. Burnett of Richmond and two granddaughters. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Miners Now Have Much More Room

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—David Fellin, 58, and Henry Throne, 29, have considerably more room in which to maneuver than they had when they were trapped, along with a third man, in a coal mine nearly two weeks ago.

They were trapped, on Aug. 13, 331 feet below the surface, in a chamber about nine by 14 feet, and perhaps 18 inches deep.

The chamber is at the base of a steep sloping corridor through which Fellin and Throne, a little at a time, have scooped and scraped their way to a higher part of a corridor or shaft, to a level of 308 feet.

Officials of the Pennsylvania mines department said they learned that Fellin and Throne had managed to chisel out more elbow room, not only to the higher level of the shaft, but in their own cramped burrow.

Some of the debris thus removed for a little more spaciousness, authorities said, has been dumped at the base of the chamber walls, and the rest under boards which form a crude flooring for the chamber.

Some Areas Report Cool Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unseasonably cool weather covered wide areas in the northeastern quarter of the nation today. The mercury dropped to near freezing in some areas.

For the second consecutive morning temperatures dropped into the 30s in sections of Pennsylvania and New England. The 36 at Pellston, Mich., was one of the lowest readings in the Midwest. It was 39 at Bradford and Phillipsburg, Pa. The 40s and 50s were reported in many areas, with possible freezing readings in sections of New England.

It was hot and humid in much of the Southland Sunday, with not much relief indicated today. Nighttime temperatures were in the 70s and 80s.

Generally dry weather was reported in most of the country. Thunderstorms rumbled across the Northern Plains, in sections of the Rockies and in Virginia.

WHAT'S A POOR GIRL TO DO?
By HELEN WRDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I'll be 27 this coming autumn and haven't yet found the right guy. What is a decent woman supposed to do? Where am I to meet a man: object matrimony? I don't need sympathy. My girl friends offer that. What I want is constructive advice.

Throughout high school I watched friend after friend become pregnant, quit school and marry. I judged them foolish. God help me, I wish I'd played the fool! Instead, though I felt attracted to some fellows who made passes at me, I got resolutely stuck to church work and deemed myself happy. Being strait-laced, I refused to date a boy who smoked, drank, danced, cursed or petted. Not until my senior year in college did I meet a man who measured up to my lofty principles. He married my best friend. I was temporarily consoled by his chum but that romance withered on the vine.

At 24, I finally concluded that the only way to flag a male was with sex. The past three years have been a succession of affairs—the most serious being with my landlord, a married man and the father of two children. In desperation I consulted a psychiatrist. He suggested something constructive, like teaching Sunday School. Ha! Ha! I taught Sunday School from my 13th to 24th years for what? Encouraged by this headshrinker, I took dancing lessons, learned to bowl, appreciate good music and the theatre. But I might as well have stayed home and read Freud. All men want to do is neck! Even those you meet at Sunday school. They'll take you to a drive-in or dancing only if you sleep with them. If you won't, they'll find a girl who will.

Why marry? It seems far more sincere to me to have an affair, then snap your fingers when the guy flits on to another girl. I've yet to meet a man with enough respect for his wife not to make

Dear Experience: It would seem that your experience has caused you to lose faith in mankind and the institution of matrimony. In reality, you have lost faith in yourself. Without self-respect how can you hope to inspire respect in others?

The conclusions you've reached about men are far more damning to yourself than to them. Has it ever occurred to you that by your very attitude you attract the wrong type of men? You go from one extreme to the other. Beginning with the narrow, puritanical pinnacle of your school and college days you have lowered your standards to the level of promiscuity and immorality. The bait determines the catch and to-date you've used the wrong bait. All men are "not" like the ones you have been meeting. There "are" happily married men who genuinely love their wives and remain true to them. There are also single men perfectly capable of achieving this happy stage with the right wife. Hold that thought! Like attracts like.

Admit the flaws in your philosophy then honestly evaluate your appearance, personality and friends, along with the entire pattern of your life. If you're stuck in a social rut, or unpromising job, embark upon a new career. Change your environment. You're young enough to alter your ways drastically. Accent the positive! Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Travel and Work."

Dear Helen: Six months ago I stayed out too late with one boy. My parents started looking for me when I didn't come home at the promised hour—11 o'clock. It was nearer one when I walked in. My mother beat me almost to death, shrieking that I could never see this boy again. Three days later she cooled down and agreed to let me see him only if he came to the house. He quit coming. I still am not allowed out. I'm dying of the heat. My mother intends to punish me for a long time to come and threatens a reformatory. These last months have been torture. I'm going on 15. What in the world can I do?—Can't Take It

Dear Can't: Autumn, cool weather and school will solve most of your problems. Your letter indicates a talent for histrionics. If your school offers drama as an extra-curricular activity, take it up. I agree with your mother in principle, if not practice. No 15-year-old-girl should be out on the town till one A.M.

Dear Helen: I am 14 and love animals. Dad and Mother hate them. They are mean to me and my dog. How can I make them like animals?—Animal Lover

Dear Animal: Try to find out why your parents hate animals. Maybe they are allergic to them. If so, there's not much you can do. If not, you might win them over through your dog. Prove he is a self-respecting citizen by training him properly. Teach him

Man Beats Women at Their Game

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A Little Rock man has beaten the women at their own game—sewing. He's Clariton W. Pryor, 37-year-old professor at Philander Smith College. He's been crocheting, knitting and doing other needlework since he was 16 and he's won national and international awards.

Pryor had a severe bout with polio when he was 16 and his mother suggested that he take up needlework to while away the hours during convalescence.

He's been at it ever since. His latest honor was being named one of the top 14 "Fair Ladies" at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

The competition was worldwide. Pryor worked for two years on the 14 samples of lace work he submitted. He also won top awards with lace doilies and center pieces.

His knitting and crocheting woolen socks and a stole for the National Wool Contest in New York in November.

Pryor's hobby pays off, too. He won $900 for a bedspread and his total cash awards at the Grand Needlework Contest last year totaled $2,000.

a few tricks. Make him a member of the family.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Paris Fashion Offers Lots of Trends

EDITORS: This story accompanies photos being released next Monday.

By LUCIE NOEL

PARIS (AP) — Paris fashion designers offer a wealth of trends, in beautiful fabrics and striking colors, for fall and winter.

The to-each-his-own approach, as shown in photographs released today, means there is something for everyone—from the conservative follow-fashion dresser to the nonconformist rebel. Soon the styles will be adapted to the American market—for a fraction of the Paris prices.

One important trend is the muffled-up look for winter, in a general antifreeze campaign the entire couture endorsed. Collars climb up to the eyes, bypassing chin and nose. Necklines are covered, hooded, scarved or swathed in fur or fabric stoles and high windshield collars. Topcoats are easy, roomy, square-shouldered and spell winter comfort.

The showings were the biggest for fall and winter. Included were many fur trimmings on suits for day and evening displayed by such houses as Heim Chanel Saint Laurent and Griffe.

Most styles shown for day in soft mohairs and tweed plaids, checks and herringbones, also appear in evening wear in deluxe silks, velvets and brocades — among the best French manufacturers have produced.

For evening jeweled and beaded embroidery is all important. Feathers are integrated and add a touch of fantasy. Bird plumage colors were shown for sports.

One of the season's important features is the return of sleeves. Batwing sleeves are at Cardin's for every hour, from tweed to chiffon. At Saint-Laurent's they are tight-fitting and jeweled for evening. Larocche does them in fur on tweed suits and so does Lanvin. Ricci uses fur sleeves in wool coats.

Fabrics and colors lend the excitement to a carefully studied silhouette. Mosaic cameos tweeds by Asher, firm mohair, checked weaves by Besson, blended shades in king-sized plaids and houndstooth lend quality and beauty to the winter scene.

Pro Vikings Upset New York Giants

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It may be the dirtiest trick since the invention of the mousetrap.

As every defensive football player knows, the only thing to do when Jimmy Brown has the ball is for five or six or seven of you to rush up and maybe if enough of you get there you can knock him down. Maybe.

But now, when you start clumping up there by platoon fronts, he's throwing the ball. Absolutely unfair.

The 230-pound bull of a fullback for the Cleveland Browns, probably the most feared runner in the National Football League, picked up 68 yards on 13 rushing attempts and ran two touchdowns on Sunday's 24-7 exhibition rout of the San Francisco 49ers.

That's just a routine sort of performance for the five-time rushing leader. But he also tossed a pass to fleet Ray Renfro that went for 80 yards and another touchdown. He also caught three passes for another 19 yards.

A crowd of 28,335 in San Francisco watched the Browns score their first exhibition victory of the season and 29,815 were on hand in Minneapolis to witness Minnesota's impatient young Vikings score a 17-16 upset of New York Eastern Division champion Giants, the Vikings third straight triumph.

Oakland exploded for 27 points in the final quarter to complete a 43-16 rout of the New York Jets in the only Sunday American Football League exhibition.

In Saturday's NFL games, rookie Grady Wade kicked a field goal with six seconds left for the difference in Baltimore's 17-14 triumph over Pittsburgh at Atlanta, Ga.; Green Bay's mighty Packers won their third straight, blasting the Chicago Bears 26-7 at Milwaukee; Philadelphia romped over Washington 41-13 at Charlotte, N.C.; Detroit rallied for all its points in the second period and beat St. Louis 22-17 at Omaha and the Los Angeles Rams edged Dallas 20-17 at Portland, Ore.

In the American League, the hopeful Bisons beat Boston 24-14 at Buffalo, the Patriots' fourth straight loss.

Declares Moon Ship Won't Sink

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force scientist said today a space vehicle landing on the moon "will not sink away into a sea of dust" as some had supposed.

Dr. John W. Salisbury said if there is dust on the moon it is "caked" dust, sufficiently firm to support explorers moving about on the surface.

But he said lunar dust particles tend to stick together, and cling to all metal and glass surfaces.

He said this "will provide an unusual difficulty in the operation of camera lenses, portholes and mirrors."

Salisbury made his report on experiments he is directing at the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories, Bedford, Mass., in an article in the Office of Aerospace Research publication "OAR Research Review."

Show Has Space Folks Visiting U.S.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television viewers who complain about the sameness of series and the stereotyping of characters are invited by ABC to take a look at its new Monday night series, "The Outer Limits."

There they will encounter such unusual villains as inhabitants of another planet who appropriate six square blocks of an American community for experimental purposes; a foreign power that replaces the show-in candidate for the U.S. presidency with a double who is one of theirs; a magic machine that can see and hear everything going on within a five-mile area, and monsters by the car load.

The series will go several spots beyond Rod Serling's "Twilight Zone" on CBS which concentrates on the supernatural and the unexplainable. Like "Twilight Zone," it will play its monsters and the visitors from other planets straight.

Dropped into a 7:30 p.m. (EDT) time slot, the series obviously is expected to attract a youthful audience. Producer-writer Joseph Stefano, therefore, has been walking that narrow line which separates titillating entertainment from down-right scary stuff.

Stefano hopes to avoid parental complaints by creating monsters completely divorced from reality.

"Actually, I'd rather have my own 5-year-old see my monsters than a television show in which a bunch of black-jacketed hoods beat up somebody," he added.

Compromise on Civilian Space Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise authorizing more than $3.3 billion for the civilian space program this fiscal year was approved today by a Senate-House conference committee.

Included in the big package was $3.9 million to start building an electronics research center, originally planned for the Greater Boston area, which drew protests from Congress members in other areas.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., said the compromise includes restrictions originally approved by the House.

"This will require NASA to come back to the congressional space committees and justify need for the project as well as its location," Anderson said.

Anderson said the compromise

Slim, tiny waisted, Linda Ybarra searched my face with her challenging stare, mocking me, daring me.

"Are you, Senor Benson, a thing of straw, as well as afraid of a woman? Come, senor, demonstrate your manly initiative."

"But—"

"Are Norte Americanos not notoriously progressive?"

I could not guess what she was trying to prove, or even what she was bent on having me do. She was inviting a kiss, I decided. My face grew hot, the look of her eyes embarrassed me.

"My Uncle Felix," she laughed, "he lives at Ciudad Juarez, calls them 'unrestrainedly impetuous.' He is, of course, very old," she added. The petulant lips shaped a broader smile.

"But, see here—"

"Let me hear you say 'Linda.'"

I looked worriedly about.

She scorned my apprehension. "A worm, I think," she said with contempt. "A squiggling maggot."

Her eyes matched the insolence. I could feel the heat clean up into my hair. A bitter fury came hard on its heels. For two cents, right then . . . But this was no time for games. I felt her hand touch my arm and tried to appeal to her intelligence. "We're being most indiscreet—"

"You talk like my duenna."

She looked at me angrily. "I am fed to the teeth with the pap of discretion!" Her look brightened imperiously. "Who's to hear—"

"There are servants!"

"Can you think anyone pays attention to them?" She began to tighten her grip, leaning toward me, lips parted.

I jerked away and stepped back, fiercely minded to shake her. This kind of thing could get me in trouble. Spaniards, I'd heard, were very strict with their women, particularly—

She must have picked up my thought. "You know, I could have figured to putty it up fer you—Garrett has put him up to this! You'll see! He'll skin out everything!"

I stared at her, astounded.

At least she was not unaware ## of her power. We both knew whatever she chose to say would be believed. It lay bright in her eyes, in the twist of red lips.

"I think, Little Mouse, we're about to uncover some mutual interests."

Somehow I got away politely. I rode back across the river in no great hurry, my thoughts mostly on Linda Ybarra, but with a little concern for the race that I'd agreed to run with her father.

Linda had given me something to think about. But the worries she'd stirred were overshadowed completely by the remarks of Shirl Dorris when I gave him the gist of my talk with Ybarra.

His eyes looked about to come straight off his cheekbones. He could not have turned more apoplectic if he had got a hair snuffed up his windpipe.

"You swivel dude!" he yelled, starting toward me. "I ort to take you apart!"

Decision Over Braves Adds to Dodger Lead

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

For a guy who came very near to being a record-breaking loser for baseball's losingest team, Bob Miller has come a long way in a year. He's now a bullpen star for a club driving to a pennant.

The 24-year-old right-hander picked up another victory Sunday as the Los Angeles Dodgers boosted their National League lead to 6½ games with a 2-1 decision over Milwaukee.

Miller came on in the ninth inning after the Braves had pulled into a tie against Sandy Koufax, got the third out, and became a winner when Doug Camilli singled in a Dodger run in the last of the inning.

Miller went from starter to full-time reliever two weeks ago and has been a good one. He's allowed just one run in 23 innings over seven games, has run his record to 9-8, and has been credited with two saves.

It was vastly different last year, when he lost his first 12 decisions with the New York Mets and only stayed out of the record book by edging the Chicago Cubs 2-1 on the next to last day of the season. If he had dropped that one, for an 0-13 mark, it would have been a big league record for most defeats by a winless pitcher. The Mets, of course, did make the record book by losing 120 times.

The Dodgers picked up ground on San Francisco and St. Louis, still tied for second. Frank Robinson's grand slam homer in the eighth inning powered Cincinnati over the Giants 8-7, and Houston beat the Cardinals 3-1 on three unearned runs and Jim Umbricht's sharp relief.

Also in the NL — Philadelphia downed Pittsburgh 4-2 on Johnny Callison's 11th-inning homer and lefty Dick Ellsworth became an 18-game winner as the Cubs trimmed the Mets 3-1.

In the American League — the first-place New York Yankees beat Chicago 4-0 on a two-hitter by Al Downing before Gary Pe-

Football Player Critically Hurt

MORRILTON, Ark. (AP)—Doctors said Saturday it will be "touch and go" as to whether Jimmy Austin, 16, of Atkins, will play any football this season.

Austin, considered a likely prospect for fullback on the Atkins High School football team, suffered three minor fractures of the lower back and multiple abrasions Friday when his car collided with a train.

The collision came at an intersection at Atkins. The Missouri Pacific Railroad freight train hit Austin's car, spun it around, and Austin was thrown from the car. He was reported resting well in a Morrilton hospital.

Pine Bluff Man Is Golf Winner

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Howdy Wilkins of Pine Bluff defeated David McCauley two-up Sunday to win the Southeast Arkansas Invitational golf championship at Pine Bluff.

Wilkins overcame a one-stroke lead to get the victory. He pulled even when he parred the 11th hole and McCauley shot a bogey five. He went ahead with a birdie on the 16th and added to his lead with another birdie on the 18th.

Wilkins pitched the White Sox to a 2-1 victory in 12 innings.

Minnesota beat Baltimore 5-3 in 10 innings. Washington downed Los Angeles 4-1. Detroit swept Kansas City 11-5 and 4-3, and Boston split with Cleveland, the Red Sox taking the opener 8-3 and the Indians winning the second game 2-1 in 11 innings.

Koufax, shooting for his 20th victory and 11th shutout, blanked the Braves on three hits over eight innings. But Eddie Matthews doubled with one out in the ninth and Gene Oliver's two-out double tied it. Miller came on and after a walk to Dennis Menke, got Roy McMillan to ground out.

Lee Walls led off the Dodgers' ninth with a single off Bob Shaw, then Ron Fairly singled and Willie Davis was intentionally passed before Camilli singled in the winner.

Ellsworth, a 20-game loser last year who is now 18-7, pitched an eight-bitter against the Mets.
